

what were they thinking?

does everything have to have a microchip inside? things I just don't want to happen - | next

Debate of the minds.

Invent More Skepticism by Christopher G. Brown

When we get to the point that everything has a microchip inside what will that mean? Is technology going to go too far? Is there going to be a need for example to put a microchip inside a cup? Or rather a cup inside the chip? When things require updates as much as my car or computer I will stop being happy.