

919 building and re-attaching method of a synthetic metal chip into a printed circuit board part that isn't soldered down and is replaceable by automatic printing control made by a shared measuring chip bridge machine that is giving to prior specified dimensions of metrics and universally accepted Copyright © 2016 Christopher G Brown