

1350 negative Conductive Algorithms are the translation of current in a form that may be used to hold energy and data at the same time with a specific compression ratio per algorithm and energy source in a cold state Copyright © 2018 Christopher Gabriel Brown